AIU Founder Tan Sri Syed Mokhtar Albukhary, Chancellor Prof. Muhammad Yunus, who is also a Nobel Peace Prize laureate, Vice Chancellor Prof. Datuk Dr. Abd. Aziz Tajuddin, and AIU Advisor Datuk Seri Idris Jusoh also attended to commemorate the momentous occasion. A total of 145 students from all around the world received degrees and certificates, with 51 undergraduate graduates from three different programmes and 95 Foundation Studies graduates. DESCRIPTION OF THE MACE

BY NUR IMAN MUZAMMIL SANY

Royal gold ceremonial mace

India
19th century AD
62 cm long

A North Indian, possibly from Rajasthan, gold sceptre or mace with carved floral motifs made in three sections with a rosewood core.

The pommel is inlaid with a large emerald surrounded by rubies and diamonds forming a floral design. Surrounding the flower is a register of carved birds with inlaid ruby eyes, interrupted by floral sprays. The lip of the pommel is decorated with square-cut diamonds.

These kinds of ceremonial devices were carried by the entourage of the ruler; several examples can be seen in Indian miniatures from Rajasthan which clearly depict identical gold implements.

There was an increase of British influence from the mid-19th century onwards, which resulted in the demise of the darbar (court) and thus it is conceivable that this mace was made in the first half of the 19th century.

ON BEHALF OF FOUNDER SPEECH

The Albukhary Foundation was established in 1996 on the pillars of Taqwa (faith) and Ihsan (compassion), and the Albukhary International University (AIU) forms an integral part of the Albukhary Foundation's purpose in increasing access to education.

Islam has placed a distinct emphasis on education, as evidenced by the first word revealed in the Quran - "Iqra", and advocated the pursuit of knowledge at a time when the world was engulfed in ignorance. Our Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) reminded us that the pursuit of knowledge is the duty of every Muslim. I remind my children, and by extension, I would like to impart the following: walk like a soldier (with confidence and courage), think globally (seek knowledge and continuous learning), and keep Islam (i.e. your faith) in your heart. With this mindset, no challenge is insurmountable.

On behalf of the Albukhary Foundation and the Albukhary International University, I owe a huge debt of gratitude to Professor Muhammad Yunus for graciously accepting the invitation to serve as AIU's inaugural Chancellor. It is an honour and with this appointment, our community has a collective responsibility to create a world of 3 zeroes: zero poverty, zero unemployment and zero net carbon emissions.

Dear scholars of the inaugural graduating class of AIU,

Like most yourselves, I am the son of illiterate parents: my father was a trader and my mother, a housewife. Unlike yourselves, I never had the opportunity to pursue higher education due to poverty and started helping my father in business since the tender age of 15. As a result, when I had the means, I was determined to provide opportunity by creating a lifeline and allowing one to redefine their future through education. The scholarship is not a loan, and it is not a bond - all I ask is for you to assist someone else in need when you have the means to do so. I do not differentiate the education provision given to you against that of what I provide for my own children- my earnest hope is that you pay it forward to those who need it most.

During your time at AIU, you have learned about, and I hope, practiced the 5A core values: adab, akhlak, akidah, amanah, amalan. The importance of balance is fundamental in life, and as such, I coined the 8-hour rule where 24 hours is sectioned into 3 parts: 8-hours for the day's education, 8-hours for the nights sleep and 8-hours for helping others in need. I expect all graduates of AIU to carry the 5As, practice the 8-hour rule and innovate through social business.

University is a place of learning, and remember that learning is a continuous journey - it does not and should not end the moment you leave this campus. As a parent, I can resonate with the pride and sense of achievement that each and every one of you hold on this very special day. You should be proud of how far you have come, and know that this mile stone is merely the beginning of your life ahead. In a world rife with challenges, you need to possess the ability to learn, unlearn and relearn throughout your life.

Last but not least, I would like to leave you with something that my mother, Sharifah Rokiah, taught me: "Nothing is yours until you have given it away with all your heart in the hope that it will make someone's life easier".

SHARIFAH SOFIA SYED MOKHTAR SHAH

CHANCELLOR SPEECH

Assalamu 'Alaykum Warahmatullahi Wabarakatuhu

Dear AIU Community, fellow graduates, students, VIPs, dignitaries, academic and administrative staff of the university, ladies, and gentlemen.

It gives me great pleasure and honor to be here with you as the Chancellor of Albukhary International University (AIU). Indeed, I am delighted, to say the least, to be with you, especially the graduates, to witness one of the most significant days of the university calendar.

This university is specially designed to educate individuals with a mission, aspiration and those who will be the future leaders and change-makers worldwide;

The academic curriculum of the university is a clear manifestation of this objective; another indicator is the fact that the university's niche area and its priority focus is social business; in a nutshell, this is the university of the future and for the betterment of mankind.

Dear graduates, ladies, and gentlemen, fairness and proper distribution of wealth could be achieved through social business; as the current world business setup has let down the majority of the world's citizens; the current economic environment also creates poverty and inequality; and social business is the immediate remedy, as well as, the way forward. I, therefore, strongly encourage our graduates to practice and implement social business model in their future undertakings.

The present social and economic structure of the world is too fragile to salvage the defenseless among us. Our future plan should focus on harnessing the energy, make full use of technology, encourage creativity of the youth, ensure good governance, and transform business into social business; only then the world will achieve 3-Zero plan; that is to say, zero poverty, zero unemployment and zero net carbon emission.

Finally, I take this opportunity to congratulate the university leadership, the graduates and entire academic and administrative staff for their tireless endeavours.

Thank you.

PROFESSOR MUHAMMAD YUNUS

VICE CHANCELLOR AND PRESIDENT SPEECH

Albukhary International University (AIU) is a non-profit private university, and consistent with the philosophy of bridging the gap through our niche area, AIU's mission is to create opportunities and enable students to perform at their highest level of ability to address the ever-expanding education and social change. At AIU, we honour and celebrate our individual differences and collective accomplishments and embrace the 5A core values (Aqidah, Akhlaq, Adab, Amanah, and Amalan) in our university and society.

This gathering is momentous for AIU since we commemorate the success of 51 graduates and 95 students who have successfully completed the Bachelor's Degree and Foundation Studies, respectively. On behalf of the AIU family, congratulations to all graduands on reaching this height.

This Convocation should not be regarded as the end of your scholarly achievement but rather as the beginning of embarking on more future endeavors from knowledge and experience gained during this academic journey. You have indeed most certainly done AIU proud by journeying through the academic path with its endless challenges and trials and by persevering right until the very end despite the global pandemic.

Your commitment to forging ahead amid new challenges posed by the COVID-19 pandemic is immensely commendable. We are indeed very proud of your feats; the past two years have been tough, and you have overcome with determination and a willingness to adapt. Remember how much you have achieved and how far you have come. If you can graduate despite the pandemic, you can do anything.

Extensive and significant triumphs are usually not made by individuals on their own but are made by people working together, and there is a great need for compassionate leadership and responsible, active citizenship.

My fellow graduands, I urge each of you to go out there with confidence and work actively towards living a good, generous life and building a brighter future for all of us. May you grow from strength to strength and make your university and country proud in the decades ahead.

After graduating with a diploma in Law and Syariah, I really wanted to continue my studies but also thought about the cost.

"For that reason, I feel lucky to receive a scholarship offer from UIA in 2018. My livelihood is here. After entering, I have planted the desire to excel because I want to reward the services of the founder of AIU and my parents," he said when met at the ceremony. Touching on the recipe for success, Masrani said, he focused on every activity done both in the lecture room and outside, including participating in various curriculum activities.

"Everything must be balanced in terms of academics as well as sports and leadership. I really did not expect to graduate and get this award despite the various challenges, including Covid-19," he said, who also received the Vice Chancellor's Award.
